

WORKING AGAINST HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Landstar is committed to working with industry groups and supply chain partners in the fight against human trafficking. We recognize that truckers are one of the first lines of defense to identify, report on and help prevent human trafficking. Orientation for all new BCOs at Landstar includes information on human trafficking. We are a corporate sponsor of Truckers Against Trafficking \(TAT\) and have worked with the organization to educate and certify over 2,500 of our BCOs and employees on the proper actions when encountering potential trafficked victims. Representatives of TAT also are regularly invited to BCO safety meetings and other Landstar events.

Landstar has signed the U.S. Department of Transportation’s Transportation Leaders Against Human Trafficking (TLAHT) pledge that calls on leaders in the transportation industry to commit to employee education, raising public awareness and measuring the collective impact to end human trafficking.

Landstar also uses our own publications to bring attention to the fight against human trafficking. These are examples of articles that have appeared in Landstar’s “Road to Success®” magazine, which has a print run of 100,000 copies and is distributed to all of our independent agents and BCOs as well as to over 600 truck stops throughout the USA.
